Washington, June II.—In the senate, Mr. Sherman, from the committee on library, reported favorably the house bill authorizing the national academy of sciences to receive and hold trust funds for the promotion of science. The bill was read a third time and passed. It authorizes the academy to receive bequests and gifts, and hold and use them for the promotion of science.

On disposing of the morning business, the senate, at one o'clock, on motion of Mr. Allison, went into secret session on the item of the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill appropriating $250,000 for expenses necessary to be incurred in executing the provisions of the neutrality act.

In open session on that amendment.

Several senators—Question!

The question, shall the bill pass, was put, and on this the yeas and nays were called by Mr. Vance. The result was 34 yeas and I may, Mr. Vance, no quorum voting.

Messrs. Vest, Jones and VanWyck were paired with absent senators, but announced that if they had not been paired they would have voted against the bill. The two last named senators, because of the way in which the bill was passed, had the roll of the senate called, but did not secure a quorum, and on this the yeas and nays were called by Mr. Vance. The principle of the machine was demonstrated to be the true solution of the problem that has puzzled so many heads. All that remained was to apply the principle in the best possible way. Since the disappearance of the cotton from the fields last winter, Mr. Mason has made many improvements in his harvester. The machine has been made smaller and lighter, and yet affords more space for the operation of the machinery, in its present form it is capable of doing even more rapid and satisfactory work than it did hast year. The construction of the machinery which operates the picking stems and gives to them the peculiar tripple movement which renders possible the selection of the open cotton without injury to the matured boils, and the delivery of it into the receptacles constructed for the purpose, is marvellously simple and perfect. The friction has been reduced to the minimum, and the 136 picking stems which are placed in each machine can be lubricated by pouring the oil into a single brass oil cup at the top of fine shaft. Numerous other modifications have been made in the construction of the machines which, it is believed, will greatly improve it. But whether all the changes which have been made will prove to be improvements can only be finally determined by practical tests in THOMASVILLE, Ga., June 11.—[Special.]—The Lebon house was destroyed by fire at three this morning. FATHER CLEARY'S FUNERAL.

Interesting and Solemn Services at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Yesterday a very large congregation assembled at the church of the Immaculate Conception to attend the funeral of Rev. Father Cleary. The solemn services were deeply impressive. After the celebration of holy mass; Bishop Gross preached the funeral sermon. He stated that in 1868 while conducting a mission as a redemptionist through Georgia, he noticed a little boy serving at mass in Angusta. He was unusually bright and full of fervor. That was the first time he met Father Cleary. Eight years later he met him for a second time, after he had returned from his college course in Ireland, when he applied for admission to the priesthood in Savannah. Since that time he had filled many positions under the speaker and never gave him cause for grief but once, and that when he died. He was a man perfect in duty, who had the love not only of his own people, but of the people who did not believe in the gospel that he preached. The preacher paid a warm tribute to Father Cleary as a man. The procession was then formed as follows:

1. Children.
2. Young Ladies.
3. Catholic Knights of America.
4. Reveeund Clergy, as follows:
Rev. Caffety, V. G., Savannah, Ga.
Rev. Penderghrust, Albany, Ga.

ATLANTA, June 5, 1884. BLOOD BALM CO. I take pleasure in making the following stat ment. For four years I have been a great sufferer have had Rheumatism to such an extent, that I was forced to use crutches a portion of the time and could not raise my left arm to my head. I sed all the leading Blood remedies of the day, be sides the attention of several first-class physicians all without benefit.

I became quite feeble and emaciated, havin very little appetite and poor digestion. Calling at your office one day, I secured two bottles of B. B. and commenced its use at once, an efore one, bottle had been used, I felt a most wo derful change. Two bottles have given me alm entire relief. Rheumatism relieved and can us my arm as good as eyer, cured the neuralgia of my head and all malarial poison is being rapidly r lieved, and I feel better than I have for six year To tell you the truth I never used such a wonde ful medicine in my life, as the affect has been magical. It has acted as a splendid tonic, gave a good appetite and imparted quiet slumbers. I cheerfully recommend it as a quick Blood remedy. W. P. McDANIEL.

RIVERS AND PENSIONS.

THE TOPICS IN THE HOUSE AND THE SENATE. e Hennepin Canal Appropriation Set Aside to Stand Upon its Own Merits—The Mexican Pensions Bill in the Senate—John Sherman Against the Plank Etc.

WASHINGTON, June 12 .- Mr. Ingalls pre ded over the senate to-day, having been designated for that purpose under the rule by the president of the senate. Mr. Hill gave notice that on Monday next. after the morning business, he would ask manimous consent to take up the postal telegraph bill : Mr. Butler's resolution offered yesterday providing for an imquiry into the condition of the New York beeks was at Butler's suggestion, allowed to he on table to be called up at his pleasure. He did not wish it go to the finence committee, as suggested by Mr. Allision, because Mr. Butler said that committee had not reported any setion on former similar Messrs, Morrill, McPherson and Harri said the finence committe was making diligent inquiry into the subject and would report at the proper time.

On motion of Mr. Allison, the senate took a final vote on the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill. and the bill was passed by a vote of 28 years and 2 nays—Vance and Van-Wyck. The bill as passed is almost precisely as reported from the senate committee on appropriations, making the addition of $80,000 The Mexican pension bill again came u-Mr. Van Wyck moved, as an amendmen the bill sometime since reported from the pension committee by Mr. Cullom, to provid ons for invalid soldiers and sailors wh have been discharged from the army or navy after three months in the war of the rebellion, and for the widows and dependent parents of and for the widows and dependent parents of deceased pensioners.

Mr. Ingalls moved, as an amendment, sensite bill No. 1, being the bill introduced by him on the first day of the present session, amending the arrears of pension act so as to provide that all pensions now or hereafter granted, by reason of death occurring from causes originating in the service since March 4, 1861, or in consequence of wounds or injuries received. or discharge, or in consideration of all claim for pension, the soldier on whose account the n is made shall be cond

Mr. INCALLS'S PLANK.

Mr. Ingalls read from the plank of the platorm of the recent republican convention, dedging that party to a repeal of the limitaform of the recent reputition convenient pledging that party to a repeal of the limitation contained in the arrears of pension act. He was very glad, he said, that the republican party had arrived at this conclusion, and at last, in unmistable language, declared itself in favor of chis principle. Mr. Ingalls now called on his party associates to carry out the expressed declaration of their party. He had up to this time favored the passage of the Mexican bill as it stood, a sufficient time having clapsed to allow the application to the Mexican vetexans that had been applied to those of the revolutionary war and the war of 1812. He regretted that the Mexican bill should be made a pack-horse for every painting proposition, but the measure had now assumed a relation which compelled him to abandon the position he had hitherto held. He had a pathion from soldiers of the late war setting forth their claims. There were still 1,400,000 union soldiers. They were voters and would not wait as the soldiers of the revolution and of the other wars had waited, until they were weak;

wait as the soldiers of the revolution and of the other wars had waited, until they were weal before ascerting their claims on the country and if congress and the president would necognize these claims, they would elect a congress. this question was to beed galls said, a test as As this Jagalls which political party was the friend of the union veterans, he proposed that the next thing to be considered in connection with the bill was whether the declaration of the reput lican party was to be seen in bill was whether the declaration of the republican party was to be carried out in good faith.

Mr. Sherman said that with his views of the demands grade on the treasury, he would not, if pressed, vote for the Ingalls proposition. The declaration of a political platform would not change his views. He did not think the principle awas right. A pension should commence when the application for it was filed, and as fer the proposition to put all the survivors of the union army on the pension roll at this time, that would so weigh down our finances as tomake it, almost impossible to bear. He did not think such a proposition would receive the sanctian of congress. He wanted to relieve those laboring under the charge of desertion, and to relieve from too harge of desertion, and to relieve much technicality those who could furnis reasonable proof of their title to a pension Mr. Sherman suggested a special committe of nine senators to take up and consider th whole subject.

Messrs. Harris. Cullon, Ingalls and Max opposed this, and after further debate and tireading of a letter from the commissioner of the Pensions the senate at 4:39 p. m., without reaching a conclusion on the bill went into executive session, and when the doors were reopened adjourned.

RIVERS AND HARBORS. The House on Eaton's Electoral Count Washington, June 12 .- The house met at 10

Washington, June 12.—The house met at 10 o'clock in continuation of Wednesday's session, went into committee of the whole, Mr. Cox, of New York, in she chair, on the river and harbor appropriation bill.

Mr. Graves, of Maine, offered an amendment providing that nothing contained in this set shall be construed as a limitation of the powers of the board of engineers designated to prepare and submit plans, specifications, estimates and recommendations for the expenditure of the appropriation for the Missouri river, and that said board shall constitute a commission, whose duty it shall be to complete the survey of the Missouri river between as mouth and head waters, and make such additional turveys as may be deemed needful for the maximing of such plans as will permanently locate and deepen the channel and protect the banks of the river, give safety to its navigation, and promote commerce and postal service, and that all appropriations hereafter made for that river thall be expended in accordance with such plans as the committee shall, from time-to time, report to congress through the secretary of war. Adopted.

Mr. Worthington, of Illinois, offered an amendment prohibiting the use of any money in the improvement of any river unless the report of the surveys by the engineers shall show that the river is capable of being se improved as to be useful for the purposes of general navigation. Lost.

On motion of Mr. O'Neill, of Missouri, an amendment was adopted providing that hereafter all purchase of supplies and materials shall be made by contract after advertisement.

Mr. Breekenridge, of Arkansas, at the request of Mr. Cox, of New York, offered as an aromendent the bill recently introduced by
